Table of Contents

APICe Talks, Seminars, and Presentations ........................................................................................................................................................................... 3
API Ce Talks, Seminars, and Presentations

Research, project, and teaching activities in API Ce typically involve giving a number of presentations, seminars, talks, speeches, either formal or informal, in the context of meetings, workshops, classes, conferences, and similar events.

A space for the many talks that API Ce people give is essential to appreciate the technical and scientific activities developed in API Ce. This Talks space in the API Ce web space is meant to provide a general entry for students and colleagues, and also a tool for sharing knowledge among the people in API Ce.

Information in the Talks space is intended to be cooperatively generated and maintained by all people involved in any form in the API Ce activities, either as producers or as consumers of the materials. The resulting information is instead meant to be freely available to anyone with an interest in the technical and scientific areas interested by the research and technical activities of API Ce.

- All talks grouped by category: Talks, Invited Talks, Seminars, Lectures, Tutorials, Project Presentations, Informal Talks, Internal Talks, PhD Presentations, Other Talks
- Tags